The chase of Deputy Shariff Mike Brown and thera after "Crawford's Great Southern Show," which jumped several legal attachments here Monday, ended yesterday morning at Cincinnati where Col. Brown nahhed the shocus at that port and was preparing to bring the whole business back home with him when another kink in the law riz np in the shape of a replevia hond which permitted Mr. Crawford to keep his aggregation intact-minus the Iteilan Band-natil tha attachment suite are settled by the Courts (?)

By the rescality of the show officials; Sheriff Brown is in the hole and is holding the bag of trouble antil the law comes to his relief, which it auraly will.

There are about fourteen attachments against the show amounting to $300; the largest loss of which is the musical organization of italians making up the band with the show and which is now stranded in Maysville.

Sheriff Brown should never lat up antil he heats there fellows, although they are usfortunate this season.

It is said also, that the wagons of the show belong to the International Harvester Trust nd are exempt from the manager's debts. So you see there is quite a nest of legal trouble all around.

> FOR PRESIDENT, WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT.

The present Tariff is the best Tariff we have ever had and under it the country has progressed industrially, while labor has attained to a high state of wages.

The farmers are the last people in the world to complain against the high cost of living, for they are the ones who get the greatest benefit from it. It is the products of agriculture that occupy the front seats in the "high cost" bandwagon. The farmers may not get their full share of the present selling prices of farm crops, but they may be sure that they would get more of it if they would organize as other lines of industry have done. Aud they should remember also that there is a very great difference between the prices they get in 1912 and those they received during the Free Trade Cleveland administration of two deeades ago.—Burton (O.) Leader.

Supporters of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt continue their revolutionary tactics and practically demand that the control of the National committee be turned over to them, in advanee of the action by the Chicago convention. A few of them hold or seem to hold that committeemen, representatives of the States alleged to have voted for Mr. Roosevelt, should be admitted to the committee in advance of their election to the office. Everyone who knows anything about the practice of either the Republican or the Democratic party knows that this proposition was never before seriously advanced. The National committee sits as a court to determine the status of the delegates chosen to the Chicago convention. It sits as a court to settle contests. It sits as a court to make up the temporary roll. In advanee of this action, there can be no legal record showing the election of delegates to the convention, the making up of the convention or the organization of the convention. To seize this body in advance of the action by the convention itself is the most radical and revolutionary proposition ever proposed in the history of the Republican party. It would be nothing less than political burglary, and no regular Republican who has regard for the rules and precedents of the party organization will endorse or justify it .-- Wheeling Intelli-

The more we have of the Roosevelt campaign the more difficult it becomes to elect any Republican.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

The Sugar Trust went on serenely violating the anti-trust law and defrauding the revenue while Roosevelt was in office.—San Francisco Chronicle.

As a matter of fact, a woman doesn't hesitate a minute between marrying for money o brains. She is always willing to furnish the brains, -- Chicago News.

Uncle Sam is going to make half cents. This money is to be used by the people who have half sense, and any others who wish. The money we now have is good enough for us, and small enough for us too.

The Buffalo News has been delving in the the early political history of the country and found in the record the fact that Jefferson, Madison and Monroe were all members of The American Protective Tariff League of New York. It is time the Democratic party ceased claiming that it is a Jeffersonian party.-Marion (Ia.) Register.

Here is what Medill McCormick, the Chi cago millionaire newspaperman and Roosevelt boosters, has to remark anent the action of the Republican National Committee should it dare to seat anti-Roosevelt delegates:

"Speaking for myself alone, and in no way voicing the sentiment of Mr. Roosevelt or speaking for him, I should say that if the national committee should seat the Taft delegates from the State of Washington that would be a sufficient reason for Mr. Roosevelt to go EX-CONGRESSMAN J. ADAM BEDE to Chicago and shoot the roof off the convention

Exit Bill Klair.

Lexington Herald.

"Where was Billy Klair when the light went out?" asks one uuregenerate newspaper wag. Several Prospective Candidates It is known that he was "sitting in the corner," but we have no definite information as to the rest of it.

That the Hon. Pres Kimball ran into the fence and wound up with a bunch of ugly looking splints on a pair of perfectly beautiful racing legs, is probably due primarily to the fact that he was trying to carry too much weight in the saddle in the shape of the Hon. Thomas Slattery of Mason county, is prom Billy Klair.

It may take the Hon. Billy Klair a long time to learn, but the Democrats of Kentneky seem determined to graduate him whether he accepts his diploma or not.

"Return to your master, the Sultan. Tell him what you have just seen. Teil him also that I have 70,000 followers who are ready to obey me to the death. Ask him if he thinks he can make mo pay tribute or own any sultan as my ford.'

This is but one of a hundred dramatic tales told of Hassan-ben-Sabah, known and dreaded all over the world as "Tho Old Man of the Mountains. His title was Sheikal-Jebal, "Sheik" meaning "chief," "boss," or "old man." (Even in those days the "boss" was apparently called "the oid man.")

Hassan was the founder of a strange, anatical sect, whom he formed int whom he controlled with seemingly supernatural tricks, by hopes of a gaudy paradise and by confusing their minds with false theology. In this way he made them his obedient slaves, eager to do his bidding and to dlo at his command. As a lad, in a Persian school, Hassan formed a partnership with two of became Grand Vizier of Persia. He gave a court pension to Omar (who is best known to posterity as Omar Khayvam, author of "The Rubaiyat"). and to Hassan he offered high office. Hassan used Nizam as a stepping stone to his own success, then mur

There, after a glimpse of the place's delights, they Phone 520. were again drugged and carried back to the castie. On coming to their senses they were told they had really visited Paradise in a vision and that if they would serve Hassan faithfully.

These fanatics were sent forth to siay all Hassan's foes or any other persons whom he thought it best to get rid of. The Old Man's name became a horror, everywhere. The Sultan strove to crush Hassan -and was mysteriously killed. Other potentates sought the assassin's destruction. Each met with a like fate. Armed forces of the government were driven back from the strong mountain castles. Individual foes died, leaving no clue to their slayers. No precaution could save a victim. From his eyrie on the hilitops the grim old man of the mountains sent forth his murderous emissaries on their fearful missions. For a man marked by them for death there was no hope. Once the Sultan, Sanjar, who had vowed the assassin's ruin, awoke in the morning to find a dagegr sticking in the floor beside his bed. On the weapon was a scroll to the effect that, next time, the blow would be struck peace with Hassan.

Had the old man of the mountains, confined his atrocities to the wholesale killing of his own enemies, he would have passed into history as a fanatical monster; not as a mere blackguard. But he is said to have reaped a very tidy profit from his crimes. Ruiere and men of note paid him huge sums to buy their own safety. Others paid him equally large amounts to murder their private or political enemies,
